NORTH TORREY PINES
LIVING AND LEARNING NEIGHBORHOOD

The Auditorium

CELEBRATING LEARNING. COMMUNITY BUILDING.

Situated between the new Craft Center and the Arts and Humanities and Public Engagement buildings, the 600-seat “jewel box” auditorium welcomes students, faculty, and the broader campus community to the North Torrey Pines Living and Learning Neighborhood.

THE AUDITORIUM

At the center of celebrating learning

Opening in Fall 2020, the 995,000-square foot, seven-building North Torrey Pines Living and Learning Neighborhood will be UC San Diego’s new nexus of experiential education, residential community, and academic partnership. At the core of this transformation are the community buildings, a grouping of structures that will form the neighborhood’s “living room” — multi-leveled, mixed-use indoor and outdoor space that is alive with activity and invites discovery.

Prominently and conveniently located, the 600-seat, concert-caliber auditorium welcomes residents and visitors at the southeast corner of the east quad, with a prefunction space opening to Ridge Walk with windows and doors. An iconic architectural statement as people flow in and out of the neighborhood, the building celebrates learning in a vibrant public space for performances, exhibits, discourse, and community connection.

Groundbreaking is scheduled for June 2018.

Help us continue the nontradition.

With your gift of $2 million, our vision of celebrating learning comes to life in and around the neighborhood's new auditorium. Together with your philanthropic support of the Campaign for UC San Diego, we are expanding the possibilities for our nonconventional student experience, community interaction, and discovery for all.
